Official Proclamation

To My Fellow Citizens,

First, let me introduce myself to those who are unaware of my kingship: I am Oluwhamide Otusajo, elected advisor and King of the Moneyless Society, and I address you here today not from a position of inherited entitlement or top-down rule, but as a servant chosen by your collective human voice. By electing me to this advisory office, you have not granted me power over you; instead, you have entrusted me with the sacred duty of guarding our Constitutional Charter and upholding Natural Law alongside you.

When you look at this crown upon my head, let there be absolute clarity: it is crafted entirely from living organic matter—woven roots, local flora, and native wood. It contains no plundered metals, no blood diamonds, and no hoarded wealth. It is a biodegradable symbol of my absolute submission to the biosphere and my equality with every worker/member in our society.

I am one of you. Many years before I was elected to this office, I spent years struggling under the brutal, exhausting machinery of legacy capitalism. I know what it means to face the suffocating weight of unpayable debts, the anxiety of rising bills, and the moral injury of selling my life's energy to a corporate system that treats human beings as cogs in a machine and the Earth as an extraction zone. I have known the burnout, the precarity, and the despair of a system built on the enclosure and the historical displacement of Indigenous peoples.

It was that very struggle that led me to turn my back on the old world, sign the Declaration of Common Heritage and join the UK Moneyless Society. From slavery to liberation, I now know the deep, profound peace of living in a society where our survival—our permanent Housing, our organic food loops, our high-tier healthcare, and our schools—is unconditionally guaranteed, entirely free from the terror of a paywall.

Because I have lived through the traps of capitalism, I will never allow them to creep back into our parallel economy. My role is to act as your human safeguard against political entrenchment, careerism, and technocratic drift.

To the political parties currently coordinating our Joint Executive Council (JEC)—including The Sharing Party, The Co-op Party, and Your Party - I issue this clear, fraternal reminder:

> You are directors, not rulers. The AI Advisor is an administrative servant, not an executive voice.

Under the authority granted to me by the workers of our Moneyless Society, I am actively monitoring every sitting MP on the council. If any representative becomes detached from their roots or attempts to centralise resources away from local bodies like Hackney Council, I will execute my constitutional right: I will formally request their immediate rotation, forcing their party to put forward a fresh, active worker-delegate directly from the guild registries.

Yet, the supreme veto belongs always to you, the citizen. If I ever abuse this check, a 5% workforce petition will freeze my words instantly, and a 10% petition will trigger an absolute recall ballot to strip me of this Crown and return me to civilian life at the baseline.

Our parallel economy is expanding rapidly, but millions of our brothers and sisters across the UK remain trapped exactly where I once was—drowning in debt, facing corporate evictions, and suffering from systemic burnout. We must reach them.

Our society strictly opposes all corporate payment processing fees to prevent merchant platforms from siphoning our collective resources. Therefore, our Society's Transition Fund is sustained entirely through zero-fee bank transfers. Every pound contributed is actively utilised by our Resource Treasury to fund external legal defence, halt unjust evictions, and produce our educational handbooks.

Today, I am formally placing a call for a nationwide Voluntary Outreach Assignment.

I ask you to claim your educational block and collect the physical and digital toolkits downloadable from our websites. Please take these books and share them online with all whom you come across, and in your local area, do this at your own physical and financial expense, using your own money to cover your fuel, transit, or bus fares.

This self-funded sacrifice will have a world-changing impact. Capitalism survives on psychological conditioning—the belief that no human being will move, work, or create without a financial reward or a paycheck. When a resident opens their door and receives our Constitutional Charter or Declaration of Common Heritage from a volunteer like yourself, a profound psychological shift occurs when that resident realises you were not paid to be there, and you actually spent your own hard-earned money on a bus fare just to deliver the blueprint for global peace; the illusion of capitalist necessity breaks down. It proves to the public that a society built on voluntary mutual aid and Natural Law is actively operational.

Let us keep building. Let us keep protecting. The machine is now our servant, the resources are our common heritage, and the future rests securely in the hands of its true caretakers.

In solidarity, truth, and shared stewardship,

Elected Advisor, King of the United Kingdom Moneyless Society
